

With 24 million readers around the world, and an 800 strong team of dedicated professionals, Newsweek sets the standard for world-wide factual journalism.

We predicted the fall of communism in the Eastern Bloc, we were the first to recognise the threat of Saddam Hussain, we foresaw Bill Clinton's rise to power. There can be no doubt, Newsweek is ahead of the rest.

From politics to show business – week by week Newsweek fills in the picture, uncovers the truth behind the news, reflects on what is happening now... and where it may lead in the future.

Newsweek is a rich blend of fact, opinion and informed debate, with special in-depth reports, interviews and regular features such as periscope, cyberscope and perspectives accompanying the week's news.

What's more, it's all written clearly and concisely to give you instant access to the facts you need to form your own opinions.

It's no wonder that since the early sixties Newsweek has won over 1140 awards for journalistic excellence and has become one of the most widely quoted newsweeklies.
